LEAKING OF THE PEACE TIP

VACILLATION, thy name is Wilson. Not satisfied with the records of Vera Cruz and Carrizal, the administration is turning a double somersault on the momentous question of the peace leak. Two weeks ago a congressional committee started out with righteous ideas and the confirmed conviction that it would clarify the ugly scandals accumulating around Wall street by purging certain members of the president's household of the aspersion that they took advantage of intimate information to turn a trick or two in the market. The first gun discharged brought dangerous revelations close to the men who were on the investigating committee. This led to a sudden change in the ideas that had obtained a short time before. A change of heart was experienced between the setting and rising of the sun and succeeded the sensational declaration of a witness that the chairman of the investigating committee was one of those who had informed him that there was a leak from the White House and that this leak had been utilized by numerous higher-ups in feathering their own nests. Next day it was decided to remove the probe from Washington to New York, and then, the day following the transfer, by an insidious course of reasoning, the committee gradually but surely turned the inquiry into an investigation of the methods of the New York stock exchange, something that was not contemplated when the committee was appointed and something that has nothing to do with the ease at bar or before the house. To aid them in steering clear of political shoals the committee engaged the services of a Boston lawyer and that gentleman is now enlightening the committeemen on what course they should pursue. He has undertaken an examination of the books of the leading brokerage houses in a modified way after explaining that all he wants the brokers and bankers to do in the way of assisting the committee is to produce the names of their clients who were on the short side of the market when the president's message was tipped off. Mr. Whipple, the attorney in question, admits that he is not going to probe into the affairs of every man who chooses to take a flier in Wall street and therefore says he will be satisfied with a list of public men or government employees who were interested in knocking the bottom out of Steel. Such action is an insult to the intelligence of the average reader who has had the slightest and most superficial experience in stock speculation, since the alphabet of the industry teaches the pupils to submerge their identity in ways that are familiar to every trader in stocks. If Mr. Whipple believes he is dealing with a lot of alfalfa raised statesmen he could not have adopted a more innane policy or one better calculated to cover up the tracks of the guilty offenders, who certainly could have been smart enough to do their trading under a nom de plume which could easily be translated into dollars and cents without subjecting the wearer to the scrutiny of an argus-eyed banker.

A SPLIT IN THE SOLID SOUTH

THE dreaded event has arrived. The backers and sponsors of the Wilson administration have been rent in twain over the fight on the excess profits tax proposed on munitions stocks for the purpose of contributing their quota to diminishing the deficit of $280,000,000 arranged for specially by Mr. Wilson after receiving notice that he was good enough for another term of four years. The real strength of the administration can be traced to the fact that the Democracy as it exists today at the White House is the unrecruited rebel support that has lain quiescent during many decades of Republican control. These men have had their fling for four years. They have rode roughshod over the sentiments of northern Democrats, and have derided every effort on the part of the minority to gain the slightest recognition. But the smallest and most contemptible worm will turn. None is so spineless that it will forever subordinate itself to the wants of others. The rule at Washington has been a rule by caucus. What the caucus said was law, without any order from the house or consent of the senate, and there was none to say nay. On the question of taxing war profits a goodly minority of the regnant party bolted in the most defiant way after declaring they would not be bound any longer by caucus action, but would vote as their own personal judgment dictated. The bolters include such men as Dies of Texas, Page of North Carolina, Bailey of Pennsylvania, Olney of Massachusetts, Calloway of Texas, Burnett of Alabama, Doughton of North Carolina, Stephens of Mississippi, Taylor of Arkansas, Thompson of Oklahoma, and Thomas of Kentucky. The revolt came after an all-night discussion of the bill submitted by Chairman Kitchin, who insisted, as representing the administration, on the immediate passage of the measure rather than jeopardize its fate by calling a special session. The sturdy mossbacks of the south refused to be wheedled or cajoled into accepting the ultimatum of Mr. Wilson that war profits should be taxed as they are taxed in France and England as the last available recourse without adding more iniquitous stamp taxes to the people's burden. The solid south stands for the war babies, which are the special wards of the administration and therefore they must be respected, honored and untaxed. If the bolters stand aloof for the remainder of the session the country will be extremely thankful, as it will give the Republicans a chance to express themselves on the high-handed principles asserted by the White House.

AND AFTER THAT?

PERSHING'S expedition is coming out. It has accomplished something. Its presence in Mexico undoubtedly made raids into American territory more difficult. But what it accomplished disappears with its withdrawal. It was not the fault of the expedition that it did not do what it was sent to do. It did not get Villa because the administration would not permit it to operate with freedom. The expedition was interned. Mr. Wilson's illusion with regard to Mexico was that he was custodian of humanitarian practices in Mexico. His avowal of that stated his passion for the 85 per cent of Mexicans. President Wilson cannot help the submerged 85 per cent. His commission does not contain that authority. His wishes do not give him power. After four years temporizing with Mexico we drop it, for the moment, precisely as it was. It being precisely as it was will give us further excuse for dealing with it. No American interests have been conserved because none has been considered. No Mexican interests have been advanced because none could be advanced by the American plan of advancing them. Pershing comes out and the country turns to a new chapter. When and how this new chapter will be written cannot be forecast. If the United States is intent on vindicating the mission of the punitive expedition it will not tarry longer than the arrival of the last man on the border to speak a piece of its mind pretty plainly that will be understood by those who have been scoffing at the paltering policy of the administration. If it is to be war or long distance exchange of diplomatic notes remains to be seen. In any event, the people will breathe more freely to know that Pershing and his men are back in their "ain cuntry" with sensible base and ample opportunity for asserting the majesty of the sovereignty of this nation. Why should not something of a drastic nature be done? The administration has gone into San Domingo and Haiti and taken charge of the internal affairs of those nations with less provocation than there was for taking Carranza, Villa and Felix Diaz and putting them across the paternal knee of Uncle Sam, whose strong right hand would administer a spanking that would make the victims believe they had fallen into sad days. That's one way of doing it. But it may not be the Wilson way of inflicting chastisement. We will see.

The Bonanza will leave it to every dispassionate reader: Isn't it better to be a rabid editor like every other aggressive moulder of thought than be a spineless parasite without a particle of excuse for existing?

Mexico may spill all the American blood it pleases—that doesn't cost anything. But they mustn't touch our gasoline. There are some things that your Uncle Sam will not stand.

GOLD PRESENTS FROM THE KAISER

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—Emperor William has donated to the "Gold Purchase Bureau," which is buying all kinds of gold jewelry in order that the gold supply of the nation be increased, three valuable items that are worth about $25,000.

The list includes a handsome yachting cup donated a few years ago by a wealthy American as a Kiel regatta trophy and which the Kaiser won; a heavy gold case presented to his majesty by an eastern potentate, and a 30-inch cup or vase, which is the gift of a German financier.

TEETH BECOME SUBJECT OF SUIT

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, Jan. 29.—An unusual court decision here has just had to do with the complaint of a young woman who disliked her own white but tiny teeth, and induced a dentist to pull the whole 22 at once and substitute larger and more artistic teeth. She had scarcely received the new ones before she rued the experiment—and sued the dentist.

The evidence showed that 5 of the 22 teeth were altogether sound, that 3 had only small cavities, and that 3 more had cavities easily filled. At least these 11 teeth should not have been pulled. Though the dentist had protested much to her originally, she had insisted that they all be extracted.

The court held that the dentist had no right to submit blindly to the wishes of a patient, and that if the patient insisted on an operation against his or her wealth, the dentist's duty was to decline to perform it. The dentist accordingly was found guilty of breach of the law pertaining to "good manners."

MANY CHILDREN ARE SENT TO HOLLAND

(By Associated Press.)

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 29.—Following the influx into Holland of thousands of German and Belgian children, as well as many children of Dutch families resident in Germany, 500 youngsters are now being sent here from Austria and even children of Rumanian and Turkish nationality are being brought here by a Jewish relief organization.

A side issue of more than usual interest in the Vanderbilt Cup Race, Santa Monica, Cal., Nov. 16th, was the battle of The Tires. Both Goodrich and Goodyear were out to win, and much emphasis was placed upon the standing of the contestants in the championship table. While Aitken in the early stages of the race was leading, it looked very much as if Goodyear would score; but Resta, who was the backbone of the Goodrich offense, soon made his presence felt, and when he assumed the lead there was much animation apparent in the Goodrich camp. Later, when it developed that the four leading cars were equipped with Goodrich Tires, telegrams were flashed to every section of the country announcing the victory, which again places the Goodrich in the van for 1916 championship honor. Every car that finished carried Bosch equipment, the majority of them having Bosch spark plugs in addition to magnitos of the same make.

We carry Silvertown Cord Tires and Bosch magnetos in stock.
